Rev up your taste buds for an exceptional celebration at the 5th Annual Earth Day Food & Wine Festival on April 16, 2011. Indulge in unlimited samples of seasonally based dishes, taste from over 150 Central Coast wines, kick up your heels to live music, and visit with farmers who nurture a healthy environment. Held at Pomar Junction Vineyard & Winery in Templeton, California, the event is conveniently located on California's scenic Central Coast.

Appreciate this event's minimal footprint through the plastic reduction policy, extensive recycling and compost program, and solar powered entertainment stage. Take advantage of countywide shuttle services as on-site parking is extremely limited – advanced reservations required.

WEEKEND ACTIVITIES | APRIL 15-17, 2011

But wait, there's more! Barrel tastings, cooking demonstrations, concerts, and farm tours complement the main festival and take place throughout the weekend.

Ticket proceeds and sponsorships are considered donations to the Central Coast Vineyard Team, a 501 (c)3 non-profit winegrape growers organization that promotes sustainable farming practices.
